Public Discussions Are Scheduled On School Budget, Higher by 3.3%

A budget of $10,686,900, up 3.3 percent or $343,300 from this year's, is now in the hands of school board members. It will be up for public discussion at a series of meetings this Thursday at 8: next Tuesday at 8, Thursday, January 10, at 7 and Monday, January 14, at 8, all in Valley Road.

A Long-Range Committee report by Joan Doig will also be given this Thursday. Citizens may call a budget hotline at 924-5600 between 9 and 4, Monday through Friday.

The proposed budget increases current expenses by 7.2 percent and requires a cap appeal to the state for $233,100. (Voters will actually vote on a current expense budget of $8,500,100 and a separate capital outlay budget of $255,900. The rest comes from revenues other than local taxes.)

If adopted by the board and passed by the voters, this budget would increase Borough taxes by 37 cents and Township taxes by six cents.

Budgeted salary increases average 4.6 percent, non-salary increases are budgeted at 8.7 percent, based on Consumer Price Index figures. The budget presumes an enrollment decrease of 2.4 percent, from 2,908 to 2,837. The average current expense cost per pupil is $3,434, which is $309 more than the present budget. State Cost of Education Index figures show that Princeton pays $466 more per pupil than comparable districts.

The budget shows 2.6 fewer elementary teachers, 1 for Community Park, eight-tenths each for Littlebrook and Riverside, no reduction for Johnson Park. An additional 1.6 teachers would reduce class size in high school language arts classes and one more teacher would reduce class size in math.

Floor hockey, wrestling and spring track have been added for the middle school. An additional supplemental teacher has been included for Community Park because of students who need help.

The T&E Co-ordinator position has been dropped, for a saving of $21,800. Those duties will be performed by the two curriculum directors. In the central administration budget, two clerical office positions will be eliminated in the Valley Road offices for a saving of about $18,000.

The budget proposes high school cleaning by the district's own staff, for a $50,000 saving. This will help offset a 28 percent increase in the heating bill and a 12 percent increase in utilities. One position will be dropped from the maintenance force.

In capital outlay, the budget sets aside $50,000 marked "energy conservation." Under a Federal three-phase plan, the schools hope to complete an energy audit in the spring, call in an outside evaluator in the early fall and do the recommended work immediately. It is estimated that costs for energy-conservation installations can be recovered in two years.

Capital outlays also propose new carpeting for the 15-year-old middle school building ($26,000) and $132,700 for high school work: carpeting corridors and cafeteria, renovating the guidance office, refurbishing the tower entrance and space vacated by the building program.

Decade of '70s Brought Princeton Mix of Problems and Good Living

Drugs, demonstrations, racial turmoil, deadlock between school board and superintendent — aren't you glad the '70s are over!

But there was pleasure, too: remember the sun-on-snow Battle of Princeton? The spring charm of Art People parties when Princeton loosened its Ivy League up-tights? The creative, vibrant black youth center? The proliferation of paddle tennis? And, gradually, the lessening of the agonies that made news in the early 1970's.

1970. The April Cambodian invasion drew 2,300 people to the University Chapel. PHS students went on strike, "not against the school but to express our deep concern," and organized workshops on the crisis. (For six months, PHS was without a formal principal, as Superintendent Philip McPherson and the school board grappled.)

A six-day demonstration against the Institute for Defense Analyses (then housed on the University campus) confronted students and police. "We ate crow and swallowed our pride to avoid violence," said Chief Peter J. McCrohan.

Heroin use was "definitely on the increase," with five to six kids weekly in treatment. Bill Kight was hired as street minister.

The "Tower," 11-story office building, was proposed for Mt. Lucas Road, but the Post Office, faced with neighborhood fire and ire, abandoned plans for a North Harrison branch. The University closed the Princeton Inn, and made it a co-ed college. And on New Year's Eve, '69, Renwick's closed after more than half a century on Nassau Street.

Jimmy Pitman became the first black fire-fighter and after a sit-in, women were allowed in the tap room of the Nassau Inn. Robert W. Cawley became mayor of the Borough. (James Floyd, Jay Bleiman, and Josie Hall shared the decade as Township mayors.)

John O'Hara died, you could buy a four-bedroom, two-bath house in Riverside for $52,500. "Love Story" was playing and TOWN TOPICS sighed, "parking garages are as far off as they were in 1960."

1971. The year seemed almost tame. You paid 29 cents a pound for frying chickens, 69 cents for a pound of coffee, $1.39 for top sirloin. The University paid $1 million to scrape the gook from the bottom of Lake Carnegie.

New groups tried to solve the drug problem, after one youth died of overdose and another of methadone. But it was a young year: 18-year-olds got the vote, students were allowed to vote locally for the first time in 40 years, Street Theatre was founded, "Flight Two" became a youth hangout.

That Mt. Lucas "Tower" was killed. The Walker-Gordon Rotolactor slowed to a stop, and for a time the University had Palmer Square up for sale.

The term "100-year-storm" was first used in August, when Princeton took 10.9 inches of rain in 24 hours. Township tax offices were flooded and records drowned. Did you row to the Giants-Eagles game in Palmer Stadium?

Over 1,400 parents asked Dr. McPherson to resign. A black player was suspended from — and reinstated on — the PHS football team; the Rev. Ralph Abernathy brought his Mule Train to Nassau, two cross-burners were caught.

Robert Boheen announced his resignation as University president; B. Franklin Bunn, former mayor for both Borough and Township, died at 96 and the body of State Road resident Laura Carpi was found in the East River.

1972. Four days of student demonstrations against IDA brought 214 arrests. But a PHS candlelight peace march drew young and old along Nassau. Mayor Cawley himself took to Washington a 2,000-signature petition to end the Vietnam War. (Princeton was redistricted, said farewell to Congressman Frank Thompson.)

As the '70s moved, so did minorities. Black Council member Joseph Moore ("I have not been able to attain full power because of my color") was the focus of a spring-long uproar over formation of a citizens police committee. Barbara Smoyer became the Township's first female Committee member, and "The Women's Place" opened at 14½ Witherspoon. Faced with possible loss of $20 million in Federal aid, the University announced a plan to end discrimination against women.

It was the year of paddle. Saks Fifth Avenue left Nassau, and Clayton's took its place. A TOWN TOPICS head "34,999 Reasons for a Parking Garage," referred to traffic tickets issued in '71.

William Bowen was installed as University president and the University orbited a telescope so Henry Schultz, Princeton's Santa Claus for many years, died, and Colin Carpi was indicted for the murder of his wife, Laura.

1973. News! No serious racial incidents as PHS' school year begins. Hugh Sloan, former Princeton resident, was an early Watergate figure. A full-page TOWN TOPICS ad urged Nixon's impeachment.

The Planning Board announced a "village" housing concept; people haggled all year over a sewer route; Queenston Common's developer was sued over alleged damage to Harry's Brook; Thomson Hall, the old Borough municipal building, was demolished. A parking lot now occupies its site, across from "Morven."

Two Presbyterian churches combined to form Nassau Presbyterian. The University again announced plans for stores, garages and apartments on the Playhouse lot. TOWN TOPICS' comment: "Maybe this time it will get off the blacktop."

Patricia Wertheimer, only briefly on the job, abruptly resigned as PHS principal. The First Aid and Rescue Squad was reprimanded for refusing women members; sex discrimination was charged against the "Y"; the elderly, as well as women and minorities, began to claim attention.

A 58-m.p.h. windstorm permanently damaged the symmetry of the Battlefield's Mercer Oak.

Did you observe the six meatless days?

1974. Wow! Those gasoline prices! Up to 60 cents a gallon! Long, long, gas lines in February...winter daylight savings...a run on day-glo tape because parents wanted children's clothing to be visible to school bus drivers groping in the early-morning dark.

Service stations went on a four-day strike. The first Loop Bus ("not an overwhelming success") started in April. The shuttle from Jadwin lasted exactly four months. Father and son, the Hulits, fought a fire that devastated their shoe store. Michael Kahn came from Stratford, Conn., to revive repertory at McCarter. Kathleen Edwards won $100,000 in the Pennsylvania lottery. Colin Carpi was acquitted of his wife's murder.

Voters twice defeated plans to remodel PHS. The Borough celebrated its 250th anniversary and a Central Business District Master Plan was published, following "countless" meetings with the public.

In August, TOWN TOPICS asked whether Nixon should be removed and citizens were "heavily in favor." A few days later, he resigned.

1975. A year-long worry: "Will hordes descend on Princeton for the Bicentennial?" In May, the Bicentennial began with a "Living History of Nassau Street," everybody in costume, and horses and carriages. Remember the ragtime piano on Vandeventer? It was the debut year of the Princeton Recollector newspaper.

Bastille Day was Flood number one. Six days later, Flood number two—8 9 inches, then 6 3, six feet of water on Route One, 60 people bedded down in Borough Hall because Princeton had become an island.

St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church celebrated 125 years; a new postal service and a recycling shed opened in the Shopping Center; new bike paths began to lace through the community (dodging neighbors' protests). Moderate income families moved into Princeton Community Village, but public housing at Redding Terrace faced tough neighborhood opposition. The state, in the Mt. Laurel decision, warned that towns must provide their fair share of modest housing.

Francis became Acting Superintendent. Princeton pupils scored high on the new state-wide tests. The Thorough-and-Efficient law went into effect. A phase-in of paths began to lace through the new way of financing schools was adopted, rescuing the Borough but tipping against the Township.

Hopewell threatened secession from Mercer County—and did those Hopewell Township roads get fixed in a hurry!

Problems of Parking Medical Arts Building Would Create Debated Before Zoning Board

Princeton Medical Center's proposed new medical arts building will need 150 parking spaces, but no new provisions for parking have been made because there is an "excess" capacity at Medical Center's parking garage, which is "under utilized."

This was the thrust of the presentation by the Medical Center's parking and traffic consultant, Norman Goldman of Parking Directions, Inc. of New York before the Township Zoning Board last Wednesday night. The Medical Center is seeking a use variance to build a four-story, 53,513-square foot building at the corner of Witherspoon and Henry streets. The top three floors and part of the first — 42,424 square feet in all — will be rented as doctors' office suites and the remainder will be for x-ray rooms, nursing classrooms and meeting rooms.

The new parking garage has a capacity of 395 cars. Adding 290 spaces in a recently re-striped employee lot on Franklin Avenue, 33 spaces at the rear of the Medical Center, four on the circle in front of the building, 34 on the deck and 22 available in the Arco station across Henry Street, the traffic consultants came up with a supply of 778 spaces on the hospital's "campus."

By taking surveys, the consultants have also discovered that the actual number of cars in the parking garage on a clear weekday in the fall is only 169. The surveys showed that the employee lot was full with 290 cars, but the surface areas and the deck had only 42 and 12 cars respectively. This comes to 513 cars actually using the 778 spaces and means an excess capacity of 265 spaces, Mr. Goldman told the Board.

More Figures. The projected number of spaces required by doctors, staff and patients using the new medical arts facility is 150. Taking 150 from the 265 excess capacity leaves a "future excess" of 150, Mr. Goldman pointed out. He also showed a weekday photograph of the parking garage deck devoid of any cars.

Charles Sperling, who is representing area residents opposed to the new medical arts building, asked Mr. Goldman if he was aware that the Arco lot will be eliminated when still another medical arts building, approved by the Planning Board, is constructed. Mr. Goldman said he was not aware of this fact, but that there still would be an excess of 90 spaces.

"Do you have any data as to the spillover onto the neighboring streets?" Mr. Sperling asked. No such survey had been done, Mr. Goldman replied, but Township Police Chief Porter and Sergeant Anthony Nini, traffic safety officer, had indicated the number of two-hour tickets had dropped and that in their opinion the situation was "better," he said.

"If the garage is under utilized because the people who are supposed to use it are using the streets, why wouldn't that situation continue?" Lucy MacKenzie asked, Christopher Tarr, Medical Center attorney for this application, told her that in a zoning hearing the applicant is only required to show that there will be sufficient on-site parking. "Whether people use the (garage) facility or not is beyond our control," he said.

Mr. Sperling told the Board he would have "plenty of rebuttal" on the effect on the community when the hearing is continued at the Zoning Board's regular meeting January 23.

Others who made presentations on behalf of the Hospital's application were Marvin Wiehe of Marshall Erdman Associates, who described the architectural features of the 69' by 130' building, and Wayne Patterson of Van Note Harvey Associates who noted that a detention basin had been provided for in accordance with Township regulations. Among the variances sought from the Zoning Board are a reduction in the set-back on Henry Street from 25 to 20 feet to allow for a 20-foot buffer zone between the existing Medical Arts building and a reduction in the size and the detention basin.

Charles Martinette of W.B. Howe real estate told the Board that the proposed building would not have a negative impact on values in the adjoining business zone and that residential properties in the area have continued to appreciate — "even with the problem of parking on the street."

Jack Owen, president of the New Jersey Hospital Association spoke on planning for hospital growth and the desirability of medical arts buildings located near hospitals. The Medical Center has not yet filed for a Certificate of Need for the new doctors' offices, he said, because it was decided to go the zoning board route first.

Speaking for a number of doctors present at the hearing, Dr. Jay Chandler, a surgeon with the Princeton Medical Group who has had an office in the existing Medical Arts Building for 15 years, said that there had been numerous instances in which he could "respond with alacrity" to an emergency situation at the Hospital because of the proximity of his office.

Princeton Medical Center's size — 300 beds — attracts a large bevy of specialists, Dr. Chandler said, as does its affiliation with Rutgers Medical School. This results in a need for more space, more secretaries and more pieces of equipment. "Many doctors are here tonight because they need and want more space," he noted.

EMOTIONS RUN HIGH
When Volume Is Too. "It was a neighborly thing; emotions just got a little out of hand," commented Lt. Jack Petrone of an assault and battery last week at Magie Apartments.

The morning after Christmas — at 12:40 a.m. — a resident in a nearby apartment went to another Magie apartment from which loud music was emanating and asked that the volume be turned down. The complainant returned a second time, police said, and said the music was still too loud.

This time, Lt. Petrone reported, the person playing the music took offense and slapped the complainant in the face with his hand. No complaints have been signed yet, Lt. Petrone said, and the matter is pending.

Paul Robeson, a Princeton native, died in January and Avalon Place was renamed for him.

A study commission recommended consolidation. There was one dissenting vote: Charles Cornforth.

1977. A re-enactment dedicated to the common soldier on both sides, the Battle of Princeton was fought on a brilliantly snowy January 3 in the gleam of sword and redcoat, the roar of the eight-pounders, the stir of drum and fife as the troops marched back to Nassau Hall along Mercer.

Remember the Continental, his feet wrapped in straw? The Indian field scouts? Those fur-lined officers' capes? British Regulars eating spaghetti in a local restaurant? "Testing, 1-2-3" floating across the white battlefield? The 20,000 who attended? The 4,500 stranded, because the shuttle buses never came?

Record cold: Governor Byrne ordered home thermostats to 65; the Y closed pool and sauna. And on January 21, Princeton's worst downtown fire destroyed the 68-year-old Benson Building.

People: Paul Housto, new school superintendent; Robert Goheen, Ambassador to India; Daphne Hawkes, first woman ordained in New Jersey by the Episcopal Church; J. Seward Johnson, heirloom applicant who withdrew under fire; Timothy J. Sheehan, builder, who settled for $250,000 his $5 million harassment suit against the Borough. And Howard Wixwood, principal of the old Quarry Street School, who died in this year.

The Thorne Pharmacy went out of business. A new bike path, from anonymous donors, ribboned up The Great Road and all nine communities involved, pressed the state to plan for a by-pass.

But the Battle of Princeton was the fight of the year.

Ode to the New Year

Flip up your calendar,
Look at the snow!
See the spring pictures?
There's 12 months to go.

Snow, at the moment, is only on the calendar scenes for the winter months. It will be with us again, but quite possibly not in the profusion of the last two years. Long-range forecasts for Winter, 1980, report that milder-than-usual weather will prevail right into March.

Partially sunny skies are expected for the first few days of January. Temperature readings will range from around freezing at night to the mid-40s.

1978. You remember the foot of snow January 20 on top of the ice-storm, and the 15 inches more that fell February 6. But do you recall how quiet Nassau Street was? No trucks, no cars, just cross-country skiers.

The Planning Board rejected the 800-car garage. Princeton, which loves nothing more than a good, in-depth study, began yet another one on downtown development.

Students were forbidden to use four-letter words in the play "Moonchildren," and it wound all the way to the courts and to the playwright himself. Almost as much fun as Governor Byrne's use of Princeton Battlefield for his helicopter. Talk about a battle! He retreated.

Who was B. Edward Key? The student who smuggled his own "art" into the University's museum. Which was not amused. Who were the Circle of Friends? The semi-religious cult that bought a Hodge Road house under the thunder of neighbors' cannons. They finally sold. At a profit.

The Borough allowed recombinant DNA research at the P-3 level of safety. A report had recommended just that, 18 months before, but Princeton which loves to appoint citizens committees, often pays them no mind.

Voters overwhelmingly approved formation of a citizens group to study consolidation. Half a decade ago, TOWN TOPICS concluded a year-end review predicting more citizens advisory committees, more confrontations on housing, more "solutions" to traffic problems, more heated school board meetings — welcome, perhaps, in energy-conscious years — but probably not much change.

Will the '80s bring change? Stay awhile, in this lovely town, and see what happens.

Governing Bodies Reorganize as Two New Members Take Seats

Two new faces are on the two governing bodies this year, following traditional New Year's Day noon swearing-in ceremonies.

The two mayors are the same: Republican Robert W. Cawley, who was re-elected in November and is starting his fourth term as Borough mayor, and Republican Josie Hall, who is expected to continue as mayor of the Township. In the Township, the senior member of the majority party is traditionally chosen by others on Committee to be chairman, or mayor.

Newcomers are Democrat Barbara Hill, replacing Democrat Martin P. Lombardo, who was defeated in November, on Borough Council and Republican George Adriance, who is taking over the Township Committee seat of Hugo Hoogenboom. Mr. Hoogenboom did not run again. Robert McChesney, appointed to fill a vacant Council seat, is almost a newcomer, since he has been on Council only since mid-November.

Council retains its balance of four Democrats and two Republicans and Committee is tipped toward the Republicans by three to two. Democrat Nelson van den Blink is the re-elected Council President.

Appointments Made. Mr. Adriance will join the Planning Board for the duration of his three-year term on Committee, appointed by Mayor Hall. She also re-appointed Hans K. Sander to a five year term. He has been a member of the board since its founding, ten years ago.

Mayor Hall has named Donald M. ("Nick") Wilson, 56 Montdale Circle, to a two-year term on the Zoning Board, and has re-appointed Grant D. Green and John F. Kelsey. There is still one vacancy on the board.

Gordon D. Griffin has been re-appointed municipal attorney by both Borough and Township; however, Mr. Griffin has announced that he is giving up the municipal aspects of his law practice, and the appointments are expected to last only until spring, when a replacement will be named. It is not yet known whether Borough and Township will again retain the same lawyer and law firm although Township Committee members have said that they would like to share a lawyer with the Borough.

In the Borough, Barry Royce was named to replace Margery Claghorn on the Zoning Board, and Norman A. Scheule III was named to fill a regular term which expires in January, 1983. Albert Hinds was appointed alternate, and there is one vacancy in the alternate list. The shuffling was necessary because a Zoning Board alternate, Philip Noyce's "Newsfront" is an achievement of the "new Australian cinema," which also includes such recent releases as "The Last Wave" and "Picnic at Hanging Rock." Spanning almost a decade (1948-1956), it is a look at Australia's raw and innocent culture of that period, as seen through the eyes of the men and women of the crews of a Sydney newsreel company, who supposedly recorded the period on film.

The first feature will begin each evening at 7:30. Subscriptions to "Movies-from-McCarter" are on sale at the McCarter box office from Monday through Saturday, 921-8700. "Movies-from-McCarter" subscriptions are also available at the Princeton Playhouse, 924-0180.

AUDITIONS PLANNED
For Players' Production. Princeton Community Players will hold auditions for Leonard Gershe's romantic comedy, "Butterflies Are Free."

The play tells the story of a blind young man, Don Baker, who is trying to make it on his own as a musician in New York City. He wages a continual war for independence with his overprotective mother who is reluctant to let her son out from under her wing. His next door neighbor in his Greenwich Village apartment is kooky would-be actress Jill Tanner.

The two are mutually attracted but a relationship has little time to develop before Jill meets Ralph — the avant-garde director of an off-Broadway play in which Jill has been cast. Relationships become complicated as characters try to sort out their affections and their loyalties.

All four parts are open. Auditions are Sunday from 2 to 5, Monday from 7:30 to 9:30 and Wednesday from 7:30 to 9:30, at the Players Theatre, 171 Broadmead.

SERIES TO RESUME
"Playwrights" Returns

Jan. 14. The McCarter Theatre will begin a third season of its "Playwrights-at-McCarter" series on Monday, January 14, at 7:30 with a reading of Thomas M. Fontana's play, "Movin' Mountains." This series of new play readings and post-play discussions with dramatists and actors is designed to be an open, supportive forum in which playwrights can hear and evaluate their own work with the help of actors, directors, dramaturges, critics and audience members.

The second reading in the series will consist of two one-act plays: "Ontological Proof

THE SEDUCTION OF JOE TYNAN

Directed by Jerry Schatzberg / USA 1979 • 107 Minutes • R
Written by (and starring) Alan Alda (of MASH fame). The Seduction of Joe Tynan is terribly earnest, well-meaning and brilliantly performed movie about an ambitious young liberal senator (Alda) who has a problem: how to keep his wife, children, mistress and career all under control. The conflicts are admirably put: marriage—duty—family on the one hand; the siren call of work—success—ambition on the other. While Senator Joe Tynan is a decent man, he's no liberal hero, and Alda's script makes it quite clear that his idealism is clearly mixed with opportunism. But as Tynan, Alda the actor isn't altogether believable as a politician—he's not ruthless enough, nor does he exhibit enough charisma to explain his status as budding national hero. He also has too much decency and common sense to project the egomaniac of a man with a passion for the presidency. Which doesn't really matter, because what interests Alda in his film is not the political issues, but the domestic repercussions of success: the strings it puts on Tynan's marriage and the contradictions of being a family man and a man of the people. And what is unusual about his situation—and the movie—is that he becomes involved with two remarkable women in the course of his climb to prominence: his pretty, bright, self-sufficient wife (Barbara Harris) and the cool, clever lady lobbyist from the south (Meryl Streep) who becomes his mistress. Both women have a hold on him—an odd predicament to be sure, but one made fresh because of the generous parts Alda has written for both Harris and Streep, as well as for Rip Torn as a skirt-chasing southern senator, and Melvyn Douglas as an elder statesman of the senate on the verge of senility. The Seduction of Joe Tynan has the feeling of a superb TV movie, but this is not to belittle Alda's achievement. It is also a sparkling entertainment about adult men and women. And how often do you see a movie about adults, particularly adults that you care about?

NEWSFRONT

Directed by Philip Noyce / Australia 1978 • 110 minutes
NEWSFRONT is one of the finest achievements of the new Australian cinema. The Last Wave, Picnic at Hanging Rock, Spanning 1948-1956, it is a loving but clear-eyed look at Australia's raw, innocent, patriarchal culture, as seen through the eyes of the men and women of the news company who supposedly recorded the period on newsreel film. Director Philip Noyce's conception of the film is most ingenious, by intercutting the story of his fictional characters with actual newsreel footage of the era. He examines a decade not unlike America in the 1950's, full of pioneer vitality and political repression, nationalist boosterism and sexual liquidity. Noyce records things without trying to explain them, and we are left to contemplate the permanence and the elusiveness of change. His film pays homage to a simpler age without ever becoming simplistic itself. And in an era drenched in fake nostalgia, it is refreshing to see the real thing, offered without condescension or romanticization.

*THE INNOCENT

Directed by Luchino Visconti
Italy 1976 • 115 minutes
Visconti's last film, completed in 1976 shortly before his death, is among his most beautiful, and provides a fitting coda to a major directorial career. Based on D'Annunzio's 1892 novel, it is a passionate and elaborate tale of love, jealousy, arrogance, and social and religious conventions, all leading to death. Tullio (Giancarlo Giannini) is a handsome, rich, arrogant, cruel, with a beautiful wife (Laura Antonelli) whom he no longer loves and now regards as a sister while he pursues his equally beautiful mistress (Jennifer O'Neill), a widowed countess. His wife has an affair with a young novelist, becomes pregnant with his child and when she refuses to agree to an abortion, the inevitable march to tragedy begins. Visconti is fascinated by the ambiguity of the society he portrays. In this most sunny, civilized, and well-ordered of worlds, lives are wrecked by passions, and lust has replaced human energies. Miss Antonelli is perhaps the most beautiful woman in films today, with a face that can only be described as voluptuous, and Giannini, as we know from Lena Wermuth's Seven Beauties and Swept Away, can act with his eyes alone. Its languid pacing deliberate as it unfolds like a novel. The Innocent is a work of high style and sober power in which the director's presence is everywhere felt and nowhere intrudes.

'A SLAVE OF LOVE

Directed by Nikita Mikhalkov
Russia 1978 • 94 minutes
A SLAVE OF LOVE was a genuine surprise from the Soviet Union, markedly different from the moralistic efforts we usually see. A second feature by the young Soviet director Nikita Mikhalkov, it is languid and sensuous, and shines with wit, passion, and sun struck images. Like Renoir's Rules of the Game, it offers a moving portrait of a society on the brink of convulsive change. It is 1918, and the Bolshevik Revolution has just taken place. But miles away, in pastoral Crimea, a harried group of officials and filmmakers are trying to complete a frivolous, romantic melodrama oblivious to the tide of change about to engulf them. Government troops invade the set, and the turmoil of revolution draws closer. Only the beautiful leading lady (Elena Solov'eva) is able to recognize the political realities, and the film records her metamorphosis from prima donna to revolutionary. It is not often that Russia exports a film aiming to be lyrical, sentimental and commercial. A Slave of Love is imbued with a Chekhovian sense of rueful comedy, and flickers with a life and energy that would have captured D. W. Griffith himself.

TIME AFTER TIME

Directed by Nicholas Meyer
USA 1979 • 112 minutes • PG

TIME AFTER TIME marks the first directorial effort of Nicholas Meyer, who wrote the highly successful 1 1/2 Solution. As evidenced by his earlier film, Meyer has a fertile imagination, and he has once again created an imaginary meeting of the famous. This time, he propels H. G. Wells (Malcolm McDowell) into the future in pursuit of Jack the Ripper (David Warner), who has escaped 19th century England in Wells' fabled time machine. The two match wits in contemporary San Francisco, where they are joined by Mary Steenburgen, an innocent bank teller who falls in love with Wells and becomes a crucial link—and a pawn—in the chase. Thanks largely to Meyer's literate screenplay, the result is a delightful and intelligent entertainment—there is no better word—a combination of thriller, romantic comedy and social comment. The film's wit stems mainly from Meyer's seemingly preposterous confrontation between futurist Wells and a world that in no way matches his predictions of things to come. And by transforming his characters from Victorian England to the present day, Meyer is even able to make a couple of points in passing about the escalation of violence and the persistence of evil. As Wells, the charming, persevering and resourceful inventor, McDowell (A Fluckpunkt Orange) is wonderful in a role unlike anything else he has ever done on film. And Steenburgen's portrayal of a liberated woman fighting and loving in two centuries is a pleasure to watch. Time After Time is as sweet as it is clever, but never so clever that it forgets to be fun.

VIOLETTE

Directed by Claude Chabrol
France 1978 • 123 minutes

VIOLETTE is an elegant psychological thriller by Claude Chabrol, the greatly underrated French director of Le Boucher and La Femme Infidele. It's based on a true story, the celebrated 1933 Paris scandal of Violette Noziere, a 16-year-old, properly brought up schoolgirl who poisons her mother (Stephane Audran) and her father (Jean Cairns). Chabrol has no political or social grind, and he neither judges Violette nor offers a key to her motives. Rather, his strategy is to watch her with obsessive fascination, in the hope of catching a clue as to what makes her tick—which he doesn't give us. The brilliant Isabelle Huppert (The Lovers) plays Violette with a passive, sullen intensity, a mass of contradictions whose essential mystery Chabrol never quite penetrates. He is the cinema's most prolific connoisseur of murder, and this is a perversely somber, coldly objective work which unfolds like an elegant, jigsaw puzzle. But even when all the pieces are in place, the enigma remains.

THE TREE OF WOODEN CLOGS

Directed by Ermanno Olmi
Italy 1978 • 185 minutes

THE TREE OF WOODEN CLOGS is a three-hour epic by Ermanno Olmi, and a candidate to rival anything by Visconti or Bernaldo. The setting is Northern Italy, the countryside near Bergamo, and the heroes are a group of peasant families—tenant farmers—living together on a large estate in the 1890's. Their community is an earthly paradise, a Christian community in which people take care of each other. Like Visconti, Olmi uses real peasants and villagers rather than professional actors, and his film follows the lives of the farmers as they go about the routines of their lives—farming, raising children, slaughtering animals, courting, church-going, etc. His film is an accumulation of dozens of experiences of children, adults, and old people, of harvest time and plantings, of moments of boredom and jealousy, celebrations, fatigue, brief pleasures, and mysterious ones. Olmi's intent is not to protest the system, but to celebrate the essential unity and dignity of the peasants' lives. If the result is intentionally repetitious and undramatic, it is also somberly beautiful, a profoundly serious film that stands outside time and fashion.

GIRL FRIENDS

Directed by Claudio Weill
USA 1978 • 88 minutes • PG

GIRL FRIENDS is one of the first fiction films to come easily and spontaneously out of the cultures of women's lib, a film in which feminism operates as an assumption, not as an argument. Written by Vicki Polon, and made on a shoestring budget of $500,000 by 31-year-old Claudio Weill, it is a warm, human, funny and sharply etched portrait of young women pained between the desire for independence and achievement and the fear of loneliness. Susan (Melanie Mayron) and Anne (Anita Skinner) are just out of college, and live together in a fifth floor walkup on Manhattan's west side. Their friendship, and the test to which it is put, is explored, as one girl moves out to get married, and the other, full of aspiration and vulnerability, is left to begin life alone, feeling abandoned and betrayed. Eventually, the two are brought together on a new and a higher level of friendship. Girl Friends is really about being single in a big city, and about finding work, and about making friends and keeping them. It is one of the true sleepers of the year, like Marty was back in 1955. And like Marty, it is one of those little stories that grows on you, by looking with affection and fondness at people you can recognize.

BLOODBROTHERS

Directed by Robert Mulligan
USA 1978 • 116 minutes • R

BLOODBROTHERS is a cinematic soap opera based on the novel by Richard Price, an Edie Award winner. Its elements include the manic physicality of multi-brothering, the blood ties that tyrannize children, and the way the older generation unconsciously obliterates the young. The subject is the De Cuccos, a little cultish Italian-American family living in a Bronx housing development. The father, Tony (De Niro) and his brother, Paul (Sorvino), are boozing, working-macho electronics and the inheritor of all their twisted love, pride and hope is Stony (Richard Gere), who must decide between the future his father has chosen for him as a construction worker and his own inspirations to work with hospitalized children. The emotional message of Bloodbrothers is one of passions and ties so intense they border on the murderous. Make no mistake, this is no Main Street, but a film of excess. Mulligan directs everything at a screeching pitch, with almost every scene becoming a climax. Nevertheless, it manages to rise above its melodramatic clichés as it probes deeper and deeper inside this family hell. And Gere (Days of Heaven) seems well on his way towards inheriting De Niro's mantle as the screen's most powerful young presence.

NOSFERATU

Directed by Werner Herzog
West Germany 1979 • 106 minutes • PG

1979 was indisputably the year of Dracula. And now, after Frank Langella and George Hamilton, comes German director Werner Herzog (Aguirre: The Wrath of God, Stravinsky) with the eeriest, most sepulchral version yet. Inspired more by F.W. Murnau's silent film classic than by the Bram Stoker novel, Herzog has mixed carnal impulses and charnel images to create a mesmerizing and voluptuous portrait of horror. But Nosferatu is not your conventional horror movie, but an anguished poem of death. In fact, it is not really a scary movie at all in the traditional sense. Herzog's intent is to present the Dracula tale as a strange legend, recounted in his own very personal virtuoso style. For example, he sustains long stretches of imagery that work on the imagination and the emotions through suggestion, rather than explicit action. He tends to hold his octopus in static, sculptured poses, and his narrative tempo is slow, and his landscapes placidly sinister. Herzog's Dracula is the marvellous Klaus Kinski (Aguirre), a figure of pestilential elegance. Few actors can convey so forcefully the tension between the demonic and the human, and Kinski's unique make-up transforms his Dracula into an unsettling combination of man and ravenous, corpse-like bald head, batlike ears, batlike talons, and terrific fangs, right in the front for efficient sucking of available throats—particularly that of Lucy (Isabelle Adjani), the lovely and virtuous young wife who submits to his sanguinary embrace to save her town from the plague that the vampire and his army of rats have brought with them from Transylvania. Indeed, the sequence in which Lucy immolates herself in a spasm of sexual bliss with Dracula is as beautiful and erotic as anything you've ever seen in a horror film. The principals are completed by Bruno Ganz as Count Iwanowski, who takes the viewer on a trip from bourgeois gentility into the dark, deadly night of the soul, and whom Lucy leaves behind to spread the gospel of vampirism. Herzog has deliberately tried to strip away some of the sensationalism that has become attached to the Dracula story over the years, so don't go to his movie expecting to shriek with terror as coffin lids slowly open. Rather, Nosferatu is funny without being silly, eerie without being foolish, and always uncommonly beautiful. And if it isn't the last word on the Dracula cycle, it will do—at least for this season.

5 JUVENILES ARRESTED
For Smoking Pot. Five juveniles - three 15-years old, two 16 -- were arrested Saturday night, after they were observed by Princeton University proctors walking near Nassau Hall and allegedly passing a marijuana pipe back and forth.

Police report they confiscated a pipe and a small package of marijuana. The youths were later released to their parents, after being processed by Borough juvenile officer Douglas Watson. Three were residents of the Township, one was from the Borough and one from Lawrenceville.

Two 16-year old Borough juveniles were arrested at 1:28 Saturday morning and charged with trespassing at Wilcox Hall on the university campus.

Both had been previously warned by proctors about trespassing on campus, police said.

A 22-year old Trenton resident, Celestine Sutphin, was arrested early last week on Nassau Street near Vandeventer Avenue and charged with theft and harassment.

HEALTHY?
THIS IS THE TIME
TO CHECK!

with Sam deTuro
Woodwinds Associates

Trees in winter show signs which can help the homeowner avoid serious trouble at a later date. The length of twig growth, the color of bark, the size and health of buds, all have meaning.

A tree's health is generally normal if the distance between bud scars from year to year is uniform. A tree indicates unhealthy life if the distance between bud scars becomes progressively shorter, denoting that the twig is making less and less growth each year.

The size and fullness of a winter bud reveals the current state of the tree's health. A shriveled bud is a tip-off that something has happened to the twig or branch, or even the corresponding root below ground.

Pimple-like eruptions on the bark of a twig, or a peculiar spotting, may be due to a fungus that has penetrated the living tissues.

WOODWINDS strongly recommends homeowners seek the advice of qualified tree experts to help diagnose trouble. Corrective treatment can then be started promptly to arrest the decline. These treatments, such as feeding, spraying or pruning, are far less expensive and troublesome than replacing a valuable tree!

WOODWINDS is always happy to answer your questions concerning the health and care of your trees and shrubs. Please call us at 924-3500.

PURDUE UNIVERSITY NORTH CENTRAL CAMPUS

November 7, 1979

Mr. Robert Landau
114 Nassau Street
Princeton, N.J. 08540

Dear Mr. Landau:

I want to tell you how very enthusiastic I am about my Icelandic Wool Comforter. I haven't slept so comfortably in years.

I thought my electric blanket was the best answer for a severe case of rheumatoid arthritis but I used to awaken during each night to turn on or adjust the blanket. How surprised and overjoyed I was to sleep straight through the first night under my wool comforter - whether we were having warm Indian summer nights or cold blustery winter, the comforter seemed to adjust to my body heat and outside cold.

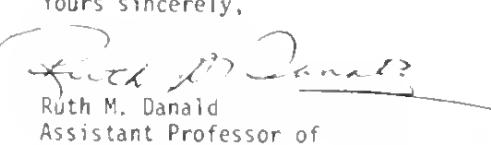

I prefer the wool comforter even to a down quilt. It is not heavy, it is much easier to handle and store and, of course, not so delicate.

I originally bought the comforter for those emergencies when ice and snow caused power failures. To my surprise I have entirely discarded my electric blanket. I can't remember when I have bought anything so thoroughly satisfying. I am relieved I have discovered it!

I wouldn't have thought one simple "blanket" could make so much difference.

Thanks and thanks again!

Yours sincerely,

Ruth M. Danaid

Foreign Language and Literature

$2,700 GIVEN: Collecting money left in a barrel at Landau's on Nassau Street to help boost SAVE, Princeton's Animal Shelter, are, from left, Lynn Lahey, manager of Landau's; owner Henry Landau, Jeanne Graves, executive director of SAVE; cartoonist Henry Martin, corresponding secretary of SAVE; Janet Cottler, board member, and Susan McCabe, president of SAVE. Story this page.

$2,700 IS RAISED
To Benefit SAVE. More than $2,700, including proceeds from the sale of original Henry Martin cartoons, has been raised from the kitten window display at Landau's on Nassau Street to help boost SAVE, Princeton's animal shelter program. This is approximately seven times more than last year. In addition to the money,

Landau's support of SAVE has resulted in finding homes for 94 kittens and five puppies. Jeanne Graves, SAVE's executive director, said, "Lots of people from out of town have gotten to know about SAVE. We're continuing to receive as many calls from people interested in getting pets after Christmas as before."

To Moth Survey Session.

The Environmental Commission will introduce interested Princeton residents to the fine art of taking a gypsy moth survey on Thursday beginning at 9 a.m.

Participants should bring binoculars and meet at Township Hall, where Lee Merrill of the Environmental Commission and John Kegg of the N.J. Department of Agriculture will lead a tour of an area previously infested by the moth. Dr. Merrill and Mr. Kegg will demonstrate how to conduct a survey and where to look for the egg cases that are an indication of next summer's moth.

The Environmental Commission has sponsored two sessions this fall on the gypsy moth in an effort to be prepared to give advice to Township Committee on whether or not to accept aerial spraying offered by the State in June and July. The most recent debate was between Dr. Merrill, who took the adversary position that trees are valuable and should be sprayed in an effort to save them, and Dr. Joan Ehrenfeld, a colleague of Dr. Merrill's at the Center for Coastal and Environmental Studies at Rutgers University, who argued against sprays and for the long-term balance-of-nature approach.

Peggy MacNeil, chairman of the Environmental Commission, says that the Commission is currently tilted toward a no-spray approach but that Commission members feel that if a survey shows a large potential moth population, the spray which they would approve would be Dipel.

The Commission seeks to educate those who live in areas favored by the moth about its life cycle and tree preferences. Interested residents are urged to take part on Thursday.

Our once-a-year sale. The way costs are rising, you may never see prices this low again.

From December 27 to January 31 practically everything is 10% to 40% off regular prices.

Here it is. The stupendous furniture sale you've been waiting for the whole year. It's when we mark down practically everything in the whole store a whopping 10% to 40%.

What's everything? All our best stuff—and that includes our upholstery, music benches, desks, bedrooms, chairs and even marvelous accessories.

Plus, this year, we've been able to make a few absolutely astonishing special purchases in limited quantities. (In point of fact, because of inflation and the decline of the dollar's buying power in Europe, astonishing is almost too mild a word.) And we've saved them for this sale.

Of course, there are a few things, like brand new items and stuff that's oversold that we don't put on sale. But then, no one is totally perfect.

But what is on sale is amazing. So don't miss out. Because we're the only furniture store we know that has only one store wide sale a year. Which means if you miss it, you'll have to wait till 1981 for it to come around again. And by 1981, who knows where prices will be.

18 Lombardo Looks Back on His 9 Years Served on Borough Council

What will it be like on Borough Council without Marty Lombardo?

Throughout the '70s, this deeply emotional, usually controversial Democratic Council member has enlivened meetings, provided quotable quotations for reporters and, in the process over the decade, made his mark on the town.

He was defeated in November in his bid for reelection to a fourth term. The winner was 151 votes away. Friends tell Marty they were shaken by the defeat, and, in fact, as he was talking to a reporter on the steps of Borough Hall, an elderly man stopped for a greeting. "Hey, Marty!" he said, "I thought you were a shoo-in--what happened?"

"I think people stayed home, figuring my election was a fait accompli," Marty says.

Actually, Martin P. Lombardo was beaten the first time he ran for Council. He was 26 years old in 1969, a young man running in the years before young men and women began winning political office. He lost to Republican Charles Cornforth--by one vote. He demanded a recount, but the single vote held.

The next year he was back again and that time he won. Three years later, he won a second term, three years later, a third term. But three years later too many people stayed home.

Not the End of the Trail. Defeat doesn't mean the end, Marty emphasizes, because he will always be interested in government and he says he has seen at first hand that people really can make a contribution and that democracy works.

Marty sat for an interview in Borough Hall shortly before he was due to bow off Council. He talked about his political and private lives.

The central fact of his life has always been his family: his mother and father, and then his wife, Patty, from whom he is now separated. That separation, he says, was the greatest casualty of his political life, brought about quite simply because he was

Marty Lombardo

"Defeat doesn't mean the end" devoting all his time to public office

"But Patty was an excellent source of energy in all those years," he says earnestly, "that's so important in a political marriage. But now we are divided--my biggest political casualty."

Tribute to His Parents. "I was raised with people who had great financial challenges. My father was one of seven kids. He gave up formal education early but I'll never be as bright as he is, or as wise as both my parents. He knew Princeton was going to grow and change--he saw things I never thought would happen!"

Marty's father, also named Martin, is the attendant for the various parking lots in Palmer Square. With Marty's mother, Barbara, he still lives at 329 Nassau, where Marty and his brother and sister grew up.

Something can happen in childhood that changes a life, and for Marty it was the brain tumor that developed when he was about 5. From then until he was 8, he had half-a-dozen operations at Children's Hospital in Philadelphia, given only a fifty-fifty chance of survival.

"It left me with a great thirst to live and share and give," he says now. "It was kind of devastating--I had a friend, another boy, in the hospital when I was, and he died. That affected my whole life."

Operation Successful. Doctors left a silver plate in Marty's head when they finally removed the tumor successfully, and the coordination in his right hand was slightly affected.

"But my parents brought me through that very painful time. They are the greatest resource I have had, and they are where my values come from."

And in fact, Princeton's senior citizens have been Marty's great constituency. This is the fifth winter of his snow-removal program, which enlists young people to clear the sidewalks of the elderly.

"Before I was elected," he says with pride, "there was no advisory council for senior citizens, or anyone to plan programs for them. I am now the first honorary member of the Princeton Senior Citizens Club, and I have pledged to them that my active interest in senior citizens will continue."

Active For Youth, Too. The other end of the age line has been Marty's interest, also, and he says he will continue his interest in youth, although he hasn't yet figured out just how. He does hope he can get the youth group known as Interact to interact more with the seniors.

"I want to take time to grow with my daughter, Tricia, who will be 6 in a few weeks. She lives with her mother, but I pick her up every day at school, and on Election Day I took her to the Statue of Liberty. I want to concentrate now on my personal life."

Although he has received "wonderful invitations" to join boards of directors or take on leadership positions in organizations, he declines to identify which ones--he says he has rejected the offers.

"I want to pause for a year or two."

When Marty went on Council, he was with the New Jersey Civil Rights Commission. Later he joined the National Multiple Sclerosis Society, working on public relations and enlisting teenagers in M.S. activities. More recently, he has gone into the real estate business and is now with Stephen J. Krol.

Borough residents may indeed think of Marty in public relations terms. It was he who suggested a parade of volunteers down Nassau Street to publicize the work of Princeton's usung citizens, and who once held a press conference on the site of the unfinished Sheehan building when he was championing the causes of Timothy J. Sheehan.

The Minority Viewpoint. In recent years, he has become known for the big "Attitude" button he wears in his lapel.

"It was painful and scary to be alone in a controversial situation," he recalls, and indeed Marty was often a lone voice.

He remembers his first Council battle--overnight parking on Borough Streets.

"I represented people unwilling to speak for themselves," he says. "It was a compromise, in the end, and municipal lots were opened so that people could park there overnight. I've matured--maybe things don't go 100 percent my way, but many minds are better than one mind, for a good healthy compromise."

For the Record. Marty has consistently voted against municipal budgets, and says that his opposition has led to changes in budget procedures. It was he who pushed for opening the appointment procedures, at a time when most appointments were made among a close clique of people in Princeton's establishment.

He refused to cross a police picket line outside Borough Hall. He pushed for greater representation of minorities on volunteer boards. He has been a housing advocate. And most recently, he has opposed revaluation of property.

"Low-income people weren't talked about before I came on Council. I have tried to articulate their needs, and those needs are still here."

"I am frightened for the older home-owners. They face a devastating decision: sell the home that is their palace? Where will they move? How can they pay their taxes if they choose to stay? The rich have the money, but even they can't find the kind of house they need."

Unity in Government. He says he's less "political" than he was.

"Political parties are all right, but when you work with a Bob Cawley (Robert W. Cawley is Republican mayor of the Borough), you see that they have one thing in mind: the best thing for the community. It's the same in the Township."

As opponent of consolidation, Marty hopes now that both sides "will put down their swords and put the creative energies of the two towns together."

He believes too many friendships were destroyed in the consolidation campaign, and he would like to see Borough and Township leaders get together to "lower the animosity and tension." "There were lots of good people on both sides."

Marty has been involved in government, of one kind or another, since student days at Princeton High (Class of '61) when he won a Gold Key as a junior, and a "School spirit" award. Once, he thought of the priesthood, but decided he could serve everyone, not only Catholics, if he turned toward government.

He remembers running against the National Catholic Organization when he was a student at Rider College. "I got murdered!"

Washington Youth Conference. He remembers aides of President Lyndon B. Johnson getting him into a limousine during a youth conference in Washington and talking to him for two hours in a vain attempt to keep anti-L.B.J. resolutions from reaching the conference floor.

"Later, they tried to throw me out for not listening to the party. 'And I've told Princeton Democrats, 'I'm not always sure our principles are the same as those of F.D.R. or John Kennedy."

He speaks warmly of former Democratic Council member John Strange and of Charles Cornforth, the man who beat him first time around and who, after a hiatus, returned to Council and has been Marty's colleague. And Mayor Cawley.

"Those people said what they believed, and didn't care where the chips fell."

He sees himself as a lucky man.

"Whenever I feel down, I go back to Children's Hospital in Philadelphia for a visit. I'm so lucky! God gave me something very special."

A Tribute to Dorothy Brown.
To the Editor of Town Topics:
We remember Dorothy Andrews Brown.

We came home from school one day to tell our parents about the new teacher at Miss Fine's. She had lots of beautiful hair piled high on her lovely head. She had given us a lesson in arithmetic and another in painting an apple and she had held us all spellbound.

The parents asked us if she could be the same as their Mrs. Brown, the wife of a young Princeton instructor, J. Douglas Brown, whom they had known in Paris as a young medic with the U.S. Medical Corps during World War I. She was. And from then on people would say: I wonder if your Mrs. Brown is the same as our Mrs. Brown?

Dorothy Brown loved people and horses and cats and dogs and plants and receiving many guests. Or talking to the person who came around to paint or clean or cook with her, or just to talk. She brought a fresh wind from her native Oregon to our formal Princeton.

We remember her as the Dean's wife living in the beautiful old house on Nassau Street west of Nassau Hall. We could see her through the windows reading by the fire, and we knew that we might knock on the door and be welcome.

We remember the teas at the Dean's House and the chance encounters at the A & P and on the street. She said once, "A hostess's first concern is to put her guest at his ease." Whatever the occasion, Dorothy Brown was herself, direct and clear, caring and interested. She died suddenly on December 22 as she walked toward the door.

She has opened many doors for us. We will remember

Common Sense Out of Style.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

I read Miranda Short's letter (TOWN TOPICS, December 19), and I've been wondering why any person with a grain of common sense would climb a train car? The railroad should be the one to file charges (and what were they doing there at such an hour?)

I understand he attends what I once believed to be one of the finest universities. I am a graduate from the School of Hard Knocks, but at least I do have an ounce of common sense. Please keep us up to date on the outcome.

Hooray for Landau's!

To the Editor of Town Topics:

The few words you'll read here are inadequate to say how grateful the Board of the Princeton Small Animal Rescue League, SAVE, is to everyone at Landau's who lent their imagination, energy, time and love to find good homes for kittens and puppies, raise money, and generate enthusiasm for our organization.

Landau's has demonstrated a heartwarming sense of civic pride and responsibility which makes us realize that it is not just our organization that has benefited from their generosity and concern but rather the entire Princeton community. We agree with the woman looking in Landau's window who was overheard saying, "Landau's has put the joy back in Christmas."

Hip! Hip! Hooray for Landau's, and best wishes for a Happy New Year!

Maybe 1980 Will Be Better.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

I have been ignored. Although you faithfully reported on the fire in my laboratory and the robbery of our apartment in your fair town, I was disturbed to find in the 26 December issue the false statement that the first accident of the big snow of 19 December was at 8:38.

I was the first victim of the slippery streets at approximately 7:20 a.m. as a quick check of the police blotter (Township) will, I trust, show. Thank you for your consideration in this matter.

ROBERT H. AUSTIN
135 Harris Road

Editor's Note: Mr. Austin's accident wasn't recorded on the docket but when TOWN TOPICS called to inquire about it, Township Police did locate information that it had indeed occurred. Hopefully, his luck will turn 180 degrees in 1980.

Here's a tough question. When was the last time a Big Ten team did NOT play in the annual Rose Bowl game? Answer is 1946 when the Rose Bowl matched Southern Cal against Alabama

I bet you didn't know ... that our $10,000 deductible major medical with a $250,000 limit could cost a man age 50, wife age 48 and two children as little as $240 per year.

Has an Ivy League team ever won the Rose Bowl? Two Ivy League schools have done it. In the 1920 Rose Bowl, Harvard beat Oregon, 7-6. And in the 1934 Rose Bowl, Columbia beat Stanford 7-0.

Although you know that the Rose Bowl is the oldest of the post-season football bowl games -- do you know which is second oldest? It's the Orange Bowl which started in 1933. Next came the Sugar Bowl, which started in 1935, and the Cotton Bowl, which had its first game in 1937.

Tiger Quintet to Open Ivy Schedule Saturday At Penn—Tight League Race Likely to Develop

Princeton and Pennsylvania will open their Ivy League basketball seasons Saturday night in the Palestra in a "build-for-the-future" atmosphere that has in all likelihood never been matched in this rivalry that dates back over three-quarters of a century. Each team has only one senior on its squad (Princeton's "elder statesman," Captain Johnny Rogers will not be among the starters) and both quintets are below the .500 mark as the new year begins.

The Quakers, defending champions, are favored, as much as anything else because of their home court advantage and the fact that they have been on top during most of the past decade — including the last three years. Despite the loss of four of the starters who took it all the way to the NCAA semi-finals last winter, capping a superb 25-7 season, the Red and the Blue is the team to beat. Penn is an unimpressive 2-4, Princeton is a woebegone 2-9, and the difference is that whereas the Tigers have lost their last four, the Quakers are on a two-game winning streak.

Penn, whose coach, Bob Weinhauer, has won all four of his games with the Tigers since he got the job two years ago, also has an edge in the lone holdover from last season. Senior Jim Salters, a fine playmaker, is regarded by his coach as "the best point guard in the east."

The Quakers also go with a 6-3 sophomore, David Jackson, in the backcourt, and two more sophomores and a freshman as their front line. The center is a converted forward, 6-9 Tom Leifsen, with 6-8 Vinee Ross and George Noon, the lone freshman among the starting five, as the forwards. Not surprisingly, Salters is the only one averaging firmly in double figures at around 13 points a game.

Quakers' Swarm. Weinhauer believes in motion, often relying on a pressing defense and invariably on a fastbreak offense, and going steadily to his bench. The Tigers' job will be to contain Salters, and to slow the pace to their own liking.

Penn's inability to field a take-charge team this year means that the 1980 Ivy race may be one of the closest in some time, with ability to win on the road the deciding factor. None of the other Ivies appear to be measurably stronger (Yale and Dartmouth, both with good holdover material, are well regarded), but all will be difficult to beat at home. It could be that a mark as low as 11-3 would be good for a share of first place and a league playoff, a finish that was last recorded 17 years ago when Yale and Princeton tied for top honors and the Tigers then won the championship in the Fordham gym.

Unless developments in the tournament in Honolulu have changed his mind, Pete Carril will go with the lineup he used earlier in December: junior Randy Melville and sophomore Neil Christel at forward, freshman Rich Simkus at center, junior Dave Blatt and freshman Gary Knapp in the backcourt, the latter on the point. Three other freshmen, Craig Robinson, Mike Sigl and Gordon Enderle, are likely to see considerable action — all have been standouts at one time or another in reserve roles.

The fact that Princeton will go to the Palestra with some chance of winning is in itself surprising, because the Tigers dropped their first five and Penn, at the outset of the season, was thought to be head and shoulders above the rest of the league. The Quakers will not come to Jadwin Gym for the return contest until February 26, the last home game on the Princeton schedule.

St. John's Here Tuesday. Another nationally-ranked team on the incredibly difficult Princeton schedule will be in Jadwin Gym Tuesday night. The annual meeting with St. John's, victor in the Christmas tournament at Madison Square Garden, will be shown at 8 over New Jersey Public Television, Channels 23 and 52.

Coach Lou Carneseca's team, 21-11 last winter, returns all five starters, including a fine guard in Reggie Carter and a solid center in 6-8 Wayne McKoy. Good as they are, however, the MVP award in the Garden tournament went to freshman forward David Russell, and that says something for the caliber of the opposition the Tigers will face that night.

HAWAII NO FUN

For Losing Tiger Quintet. Most tourists enjoy a Christmas trip to Honolulu, but Princeton's basketball team returned from its nine-day sojourn there with mixed feelings. The warm sun was great, but they would have settled for a blizzard and two of three victories rather than an 0-3 record and a flat-out last-place finish in the Rainbow Classic.

The immature Tigers played their best game ever against 12th ranked Louisville, holding the well-balanced Kentucky quintet to a 32-31 half-time score before absorbing a 64-53 defeat. The victors hit on 20 of 23 free throws to tip the balance strongly in their favor, with junior Randy Melville's 14 points and 11 by Neil Christel pacing the Tigers.

Next day, the Orange and Black appeared to have Army on the run when it moved out to a seven-point lead in the first half, but the cadets narrowed their deficit to two just before the intermission and took an early five-point lead when play resumed and were never headed thereafter. Melville saw only four early minutes of action before a twisted ankle benched him.

The Tigers were only a point down with 16 seconds left, had the ball but lost possession when freshman Mike Sigl was called for a double dribble. Army won, 53-52, as the Tigers got double figures from Craig Robinson as a reserve (14), Christel again (12) and Dave Blatt (10).

The tournament ended with a 68-58 loss to Nevada-Reno, a highly disappointing finish inasmuch as the Wolf Pack had won just two of its 10 games. Again action at the foul line was the determining factor as both teams made 23 field goals and the winners added 22 free throws to a dozen for Princeton.

Princeton scoring was balanced: Robinson, 12, Simkus, 11, junior Steve Mills and freshman Gordon Enderle, both 10 as reserves, but the Tigers were guilty of a horrendous 24 turnovers and their worst defensive performance of the season. Their 2-9 start is their poorest in 27 years.

—Donald C. Stuart

SKATERS' RECORD DIPS

Tigers Only Win in League. On top of the Ivy League with a 3-0 record, Princeton's hockey team hasn't beaten any other Division I opponent and has lost two of its three games in Division II. Overall, the Tigers are 3-5 in the standings against teams of their own ranking and last week, they absorbed a 3-0 whitewash from Bowdoin, a Division II foe.

The loss Saturday night to the Maine sextet anchored them in fourth place in the annual Blue tournament at the University of New Hampshire in Durham. It was the first time in 10 years that Bowdoin had blanked a Division I team, and the score is further reflection of Princeton's frequent lack of offensive strength this year.

Bowdoin had a 2-0 lead after the opening period and added a third in the final minute when it hit the net that Coach Jim Higgins had emptied in a vain effort to draw even despite a two-goal deficit. The Tigers' best shot of the night came when forward Dave Tweedy ricocheted the puck so high that it broke one of the fluorescent lights, resulting in a 10-minute delay while the glass was swept away.

In the opening round of the tournament, the Orange and Black was a 6-1 victim of the highly-capable host team. UNH took the lead at 14:15 of period one, freshman Keith Benker brought Princeton even at 17:04 but a three-goal surge by New Hampshire in the middle round sent it on its way, the Tigers eventually managing just that lone goal in 120 minutes of trying.

Trip West This Weekend. It is unlikely that Princeton's losing ways will come to an end in Michigan this weekend, where it will play a pair of Big Ten teams. The Tigers are scheduled to face Michigan State at East Lansing Friday and the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor the following night.

Michigan State was below .500 (15-21) last winter but against tougher opposition than the eastern brand of college hockey. Minnesota, for example, pasted Brown a couple of weeks ago, 16 to 2. Michigan had an even poorer season (8-27-1) but the Tigers haven't given a bit of evidence that they can get their act together outside their own league.

MEETING FRIDAY
Of Friends of PHS Athletics. Members and friends of Friends of Princeton High Athletics — now more than 140 strong — are invited to attend a winter sports meeting Friday evening at 7:30 at the Chambers Street firehouse.

Coaches and captains of the four winter sports of boys and girls basketball, track and wrestling will be present and report what PHS followers can expect for the coming season. Refreshments will be served.

The following slate of officers will be presented for election for 1980: Jon Varvel and Kit Jahn, co-presidents; Mike Fuschini, vice-president; Chuck Adams, secretary, and Jim O'Neill, treasurer. Other nominations will be accepted.

QUINTETS RESUME
PHS vs. Hun School. Princeton High School and Hun School, whose basketball teams appear to be headed in opposite directions, will resume their seasons after a holiday hiatus when PHS plays host to Hun Friday evening. Tapoff is at 8.

The Little Tigers have won two of their first three. They are a tall team, one that can dominate the boards, and one that likes to run. Davey Johnson, a sharpshooting guard, leads PHS in scoring with a 17-point average. If PHS has a weakness, it is a lack of patience, an inability to use its raw talent effectively as a team.

Little Tiger Wrestlers Fail to Capture a Title In County Meet as They Finish 6th Among 12

A remark from Tom Murray to his assistant, Jim Beachell, put the two-day Mercer County Invitational Wrestling Tournament in perspective — as far as Princeton High was concerned.

"I never thought I'd see the day when Trenton High had two champions and we didn't have any," commented the PHS coach. His evaluation says volumes about the shifting alignment under way in Mercer County wrestling and Princeton's new position.

Two years ago, the Little Tigers won this tournament. Last week they came up empty-handed when both PHS survivors in Friday night's finals at Notre Dame were defeated. Brent Robinson was stopped, 9-2, by Hamilton's Charles Page, who won the 141 pound title, and Bob Schmidt lost his bid to win the 135 pound crown when he injured his knee in his bout with Allentown's Paul Eckley and had to forfeit.

Allentown won the team championship with 129.5 points, followed by Hopewell Valley (109), West Windsor (104), Notre Dame and Hightstown. PHS finished sixth among 12 teams.

Two years ago, PHS defeated Allentown easily in a dual meet. "We may have been the last team to beat them," says Murray. Since then, the Redbirds have been overpowering, and are currently working on a 21-straight dual meet unbeaten streak.

No progress at PHS. A few years back, teams such as Trenton, Hightstown, Hamilton and Ewing were new to the sport. They were easy pickings for the Little Tigers. Now, Trenton has joined West Windsor and Hopewell Valley with two individual champions each in the Mercer Meet. Hightstown sent shock tremors reverberating across the County when it defeated Hopewell Valley, a leading contender for county honors, a week ago. Clearly, the power is shifting and Princeton High, to Murray's dismay, is "standing still" while other teams are progressing.

"It's too bad," said Murray. "We could be one of the class teams in the county and we're not."

Five in Semi-Finals. Princeton had advanced five into Friday morning's semi-final round: Eric Schwartz at 115 pounds, Bruce Cobb at 129, last year's 122 County champion, Schmidt and Robinson and Ben Navarro at 158 pounds. Randy Laco of West Windsor pinned Navarro in 50 seconds.

Robinson decisioned Tim Seip of Allentown, 9-2, and Schmidt blanked Dave Dedefour of Hopewell Valley, 3-0.

Trenton's Mickey Reyes, the eventual 115-pound champion, pinned Schwartz in 1:32. Cobb lost an excruciatingly close decision to Joel Ondrejack of Hightstown. After their match had ended 5-5 in regulation time, the two then wrestled three one-minute overtime periods.

Cobb was leading 2-0, when with just seconds left in the final overtime, Ondrejack broke free of Cobb's legs and was awarded a reversal. "I could see one point but not two," said Murray. With the overtime ending 2-2, the referees had to resort to "criteria" to determine the winner: which contestant had the most takedowns, reversals, near falls, and so on. Ondrejack won the criteria comparison.

Schwartz, Cobb and Navarro were not finished, however. In the "wrestle-back" round where semi-final losers get to wrestle those who lost to a first or second seed in the opening rounds for a consolation berth, Schwartz recorded a fall in 1:20 over Rick Warshenny of Hightstown; Cobb pinned Anthony Brown of Trenton in 3:20 but Navarro was pinned in 3:06 by Allentown's Andy Fredericks.

In Friday night's consolation round, Schwartz was flattened by Larry Wharton of Allentown in 5:45. Cobb fashioned a satisfying 9-2 decision over South Hun-terton's John Ruggieri, who had defeated Cobb last year in the NJSIAA District 17 matches.

Fail to Make Weight. "The most disappointing feature in the whole final," said Murray, "was that this was the first time someone failed to make weight." Not one but two Little Tigers were unable to compete in the tournament because they were too heavy: Ralph Sierra at 148 pounds and 188-pounder Luciano Procaccino.

"I'm very disappointed," said Murray. "Procaccino was seeded second and I'm sure he could have won his division."

Murray reported that he doesn't know yet if he will get Schmidt back or not. "He tore his knee up pretty good," he said. Schmidt suffered a similar ligament injury two years ago as a sophomore and had to sit out the season.

Unlike PHS, Hun has no height. By necessity, it has been forced to play a patient offense, to try to control the tempo. In losing six of its first seven, Hun has been hurt by failing to get the key rebound and having too many of its shots fail to drop.

The Raiders are led by their co-captains, Garrett Franzoni and Keith Duvin. Duvin erupted for a career-high 27 points in Hun's last game before being idled by the holidays. Neither team has participated in a Christmas tournament this year.

After Hun, PHS will oppose McCorristin at home Tuesday night, starting at 8. Hun will travel to rival Princeton Day School for a 3:30 contest next Wednesday.

PDS FINISHES THIRD

In Valley Tournament, Princeton Day's dreams of winning the Valley Basketball Tournament were dashed in the span of just four seconds last Friday night, when the Panthers lost to Barringer High School in the semi-finals, 56-54.

Instead PDS had to settle for third place with a 68 to 48 victory over Vailsburg Sunday evening. That win combined with a decisive opening round triumph over Irvington Tech gives the Blue and White a definite measure of success, but it's not what PDS had hoped for.

The following evening, PDS found itself matched against a taller opponent in Barringer, which had three guys at least 6'5 on its front line, and no player on the starting five under 6'1.

Nevertheless, the Panthers managed to battle Barringer on even terms throughout the first period, and had a slim 14-12 advantage at the buzzer. However, early in the second, Tobin got in foul trouble and had to come out. The winners' height advantage began to make a difference, as they outscored PDS 15-8 to take a 27-22 halftime lead.

Both teams scored 11 points in the third period, and it wasn't until the fourth that PDS managed to cut the deficit. Outstanding shooting from the outside by Cox, who scored all 16 of his points in the final stanza, kept the Panthers just one to three points behind, and finally with 20 seconds left PDS managed to tie the game at 54 apiece.

Barringer had the ball, missed one shot, but got it back when it went out of bounds off a Panther player. With just four seconds left, PDS was able to force a jump ball at center court. Tobin won the tip, but instead of batting the ball forward, he tapped it into the waiting hands of a Barringer player who drove down for an easy lay-up and the winning two points.

"We never expected it to end like that," Taback admitted. "We were figuring the worst we could do was tie, and force the game into overtime. We struggled for most of the game, but if we could have gotten the lead in the fourth quarter, I think we could have won it, by forcing them to play our type of game."

Hill and Bartolomie each scored 13, and Tobin 12 to round out the scoring for PDS. Taback is hopeful that Randy Shelton will be ready for the East Orange game to give PDS more scoring punch. "Against these good teams we really need five guys who can score," Taback pointed out.

In the play-off for third place Sunday evening, PDS disposed of Vailsburg in the first period, outscoring the losers, 16-2. Tobin, Hill and Bartolomie led the Panthers' scoring.

Now 6-2 in the season, PDS will meet Germantown Friends away on Friday and Haddonfield next Tuesday, after the East Orange game.

"We felt we were the best team in the tournament, and had an excellent chance of winning it," commented coach Alan Taback. Ranked 15th in the state in a recent Newark Star Ledger poll, Princeton Day wanted to use the tournament as a stepping stone to a higher rating. It will get another chance immediately.

This Wednesday evening PDS will return to the Oranges to meet another top-ranked team, East Orange. Meeting this powerhouse on its own court will be similar to the Trenton contest three weeks ago. PDS will have to retain its composure to win this one.

Excellent Beginning. The Valley Tournament started well for the Panthers last Thursday night as they played a flawless first half on the way to a 79-62 rout of Irvington. Led by Jamie Bartolomie's 24 points, PDS led 20-11 at the end of the first period, and increased that to 38-23 by the intermission. At one point in the third quarter the Blue and White led by more than 30, and reserves saw plenty of action.

Carl Hill pumped in 19, Shawn Tobin had 16 plus several nice assists to Bartolomie, and Jim Cox, 14. PDS was superb from the foul line, connecting on 21 of 25 attempts.

RELIGION*In Princeton*SCRIPTURE SERIES SET

By Ecumenical Council. A six-part Scripture series, sponsored by the Ecumenical Council of Women, will begin Monday evening at 8 at St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church. The opening lecture, "Near Eastern Backgrounds of Scripture," will be given by the Rev. Evasio de Marcellis, pastor of St. Paul's.

The invocation will be delivered by the Rev. G. Frederick Schott, pastor of Prince of Peace Lutheran Church, Princeton Junction. The talk will be followed by discussion and refreshments. The public is invited to attend these lectures, for which there is no charge.

The Scripture series, which will also include "The Theology of the Old Testament," and talks on each of the four Gospels, will be given by clergymen and seminary professors from several different traditions. The series on the four Gospels has been designed to show the uniqueness of each Gospel, the specific purpose of each author, the culture to which he was speaking, the literary devices which characterize each Gospel and what is known about the identity of each Gospel writer.

Father de Marcellis is eminently equipped to discuss the background of scripture. Recently appointed pastor of St. Paul's, he is a licentiate and baccalaureate in both Sacred Scripture and Sacred Theology and has done work towards doctorates in both subjects. From 1964 to 1967 he did work in Egyptology and Assyriology. Ancient Near

For Twin W Squad Members. The Twin W First Aid Squad is holding a membership drive during the month of January. Letters are being sent to West Windsor residents asking that they give time to serve as members of the Squad.

The Twin W First Aid Squad provides emergency services to West Windsor Township 24 hours a day, seven days a week, year round. Not only do members volunteer their time to give help in emergency situations, but they also stand by at sports and social events, transport patients to and from medical facilities and give first aid instruction to residents from school children to octogenarians.

the year, 14 members left the Squad for a variety of reasons. Active membership rolls now stand at 25. There is a great need for individuals qualified in first aid.

In connection with the membership drive, the Twin W Squad will sponsor a first aid program beginning January 19 and running through the first week in May. The program will include CPR training, advanced first aid courses, emergency childbirth, light rescue and extrication and defensive driving. The course is open to members of the community who are interested in joining the Squad but also to anyone who is interested in learning more about first aid procedures in order to be prepared to deal with household or employment emergencies.

For further information call Barrie Summers, 799-1810 days, or Jaye or Gordon Clayton, 799-0582 evenings.

Gregory as featured speaker which was attended by over 400, and participation in the second annual "Hunger Run," a marathon through the east coast which ended on the steps of the Capitol in Washington where members of Congress received the runners and their message for ending world hunger.

Another project has been the formation of the Princeton High School Hunger Project Committee. Hunger Project volunteers may be seen on many weekends at Palmer Square, the Princeton Shopping Center and the University Student Center enrolling more members in the effort to end world hunger. Those who are enrolled have participated in area "CROP" walks, have fasted on the 14th of each month and have donated the grocery money saved to hunger organizations.

Current committee activities include a "Doing What Works" network, a support system for those active in hunger organization who will receive a monthly newsletter with ideas and coming events related to hunger. Sidney Shanberg, a New York Times Pulitzer prize winning writer who has returned from Cambodia, will speak at a benefit December 9 at the Nassau Presbyterian Church.

For information about this event and current Hunger Project issues, call 297-1937.
